ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

Dedicated to all those who believe that the free flow of information is essential to democracy.

Also dedicated to the authors' parents - Hildegard Pütz, Paul and Sandra Caplan and Ralph and Adeline von Egidy - who contributed moral and financial support when it was most needed.

Without the assistance of foreign correspondents and overseas news organizations who would prefer not to be named, there would have been gaping holes in the information contained in this book.

We would also like to express our appreciation to all those party secretaries and leaders who patiently supplied us with all the information we needed at great expense in time and energy.

Duncan Guy was our salvation in the end stages and Avril Zolkov lent a hand went things got rough. In the page production stage the help of the Namibia Nachrichtenwas invaluable.

To all those who encouraged us from the start we owe a great debt.

THE AUTHORS:

JOACHIM 'JOE' PÜTZ: After schooling in Swakopmund and Windhoek, graduated from the University of Cape Town with a combined B.A. Hons. (Philosophy and German Literature) in 1972. Worked at various jobs including teaching, film production, photographer and sales representative selling everything from dog biscuits to diesel engines. Started in journalism at the German-language daily Die Allgemeine Zeitung (1978) becoming its Acting Editor in 1979. Won the Journalist of the Year award in 1981. Wrote and published three books on Namibia in German. Worked for the South African Press Association (SAPA) and still works as stringer for the Deutsche Presse Agentur (DPA). Became Editor of The Windhoek Advertiser in 1985 and resigned with four fellow staff members in September 1986. Co-author of the "Political Who's Who of Namibia (Volume 1)", 1986-87. Editor of the weekly Namibia Nachrichten (1988 - 1989). Currently co-owner with Heidi von Egidy of Dateline Media Centre.

HEIDI VON EGIDY: After schooling in Windhoek, graduated from the University of Cape Town with majors in History, African Economic History and African Politics. Sub-Editor of the Windhoek Advertiser until resigning with four colleagues in September 1986. Co-author of the "Political Who's Who of Namibia", 1986-1987. Worked for The Windhoek Observer and Die Namibia Nachrichten until going freelance in 1988. Stringer for Capital Radio (1988), the Associated Press (AP) and ARD German Television. Currently co-owner with Joe Putz of Dateline Media Centre.

PERRI CAPLAN: Attended school in Johannesburg and Jerusalem, and studied at the Bezalel Academy of Art and Design, Jerusalem. Came to Namibia in 1982 and worked as Arts and Features Editor on The Windhoek Advertiser until resigning in September 1986 with four colleagues. Co-author of the "Political Who's Who of Namibia (Volume 1)", 1986-87. Currently employed with the NAMLAW Project, a legal research organization, in Windhoek.
